Explanation of the Team Intervention Plan

The Team Intervention Plan is a structure that provides teachers, parents (or caregivers) a support system to help students get back on track by:

- » Identifying issues.
- » Setting workable strategies for solutions.
- » Following up on the plan for improvement.

The team prepares for a conference by following these easy steps:

- » For the first 3: identify three issues that need attention from the teachers who are focused on this student.
- » For the next 5 issues: create five strategies that the student, team, and parents are going to try to move forward on.
- » For the last 3: decide on three ways that the team, parent(s) or caregiver(s) and student are going to follow-up on the plans made.
- » Fill out the Team Intervention Plan and decide who will talk during the meeting with the student.

Tips

- » Remember that this is a focused intervention on just 3 issues, not 54 problems. Do not mix academic and behavior issues. Brainstorm issues as a team but narrow it to no more than three issues in either in the academic or behavior category. As you gather ideas for strategies, be sure to include only those that are realistic.
- » You can also, as a team, create reward systems for the student.

Team Assessment - page one

Using the Association for Middle Level Education's book, Successful Middle Schools – This We Believe, have your team take this team assessment:

Directions: Write Yes (Y) next to each statement which applies to your team in any degree.

Write No (N) when necessary.

Use NA for not applicable.

We believe learning experiences for young adolescents should:

_____ address their varied intellectual, physical, social, emotional, and moral development.

_____ help them make sense of themselves and the world around them.

_____ be highly integrated and connected to life.

_____ include their questions, needs and developmental issues and ideas.

_____ open doors to new ideas that evoke curiosity, the desire to explore, and, at times, awe and wonder.

_____ challenge students and encourage them to take maximum advantage of educational opportunities.

_____ develop caring, responsible, and ethical citizens who practice democratic principles.

Further, we advocate learning experiences which:

_____ value the dignity and diversity of all individuals.

_____ allow students to learn and express themselves in a variety of ways.

_____ use the full range of communication skills and technologies in purposeful contexts.

_____ engage students in problem solving through a variety of experimental learning opportunities.

_____ involve students in meaningful service which encourages them to make a difference in the world around them.

_____ include continuous, authentic, and appropriate assessment of students' progress in academic achievement and the acquisition of desired behavioral attributes.

Team Assessment - page two

Such learning experiences, which must be accessible to all students, require environments in which:

- _____ students and staff are safe, cared for, understood, trusted, and respected.
- _____ each young adolescent can experience success.
- _____ faculty is empowered and supported in creating developmentally responsive curriculum and instructional approaches.
- _____ staff are positive role models.
- _____ the family is actively involved in students' educational endeavors.
- _____ the learning community expands beyond the school.

Because of these convictions, we believe the following conditions should be evident:

- _____ all areas of knowledge and skill are viewed as important and are integrated throughout the student's school experience.
- _____ students explore integrated themes which engage them in serious and rigorous study.
- _____ curriculum is developed by careful and continuing study of students, social trends and issues, and research-supported school practices.
- _____ flexible learning groups are based upon students' needs and interests.
- _____ active collaboration, self-directed learning is used.
- _____ a variety of educational materials, resources and instructional strategies are used.
- _____ staff development promotes and supports developmentally responsive strategies.
- _____ the staff is organized in ways that encourage ongoing collaboration.
- _____ all staff help plan and participate in long-term professional growth opportunities.
